

Night shots of “Lost America”

Dienstag, 21. August 2007

Is it real? Yes – it’s just at night, seen by Troy Paiva, an artist from the San Francisco Bay Area. He already published a book with his strange pictures from the off-roads, ghosttowns and abandoned sides of America back in 2003, but you can spot much more photos on his page. With his shift to digital photography the images got more colorful, creatively flash-lighted and I would say the highly saturated and razor-sharp files complement the bizarre motives very nicely. I found this unusual concept via Ehrensenf, a german internet-TV-station that puts a smile up your face each day with their kinky version of “news”.